GIVEN A CHANCE

Indictment Against Fugitive Is Filed Away At Madison- ville.

The indictment against Basil Dempsey, formerly a paper hanger of this city, and for the past year a fugitive from justice, charging him with grand larceny, has been filed away in the circuit court at Madisonville.

The young man was alleged to have stolen a valuable brooch from Mrs. Blount Jones. The theft was supposed to have been committed while he was engaged in papering the home.

Dempsey was indicted by the grand jury, and several months later was located in Hopkinsville and arrested by the sheriff of Christian county. While officers from here were on the train bound for Hopkinsville to bring the prisoner here, he made his escape from the Christian county sheriff. Efforts to locate him since have been futile.

Attorney Grayot gives as his reason for filing the indictment away on good behavior that "The chief witness for the commonwealth did not know who took the property, and he asked that it be filed away, desiring to give the boy a chance." Dempsey's father was a jeweler in this city for several years.—Hustler.

FOR BOOTLEGGING

Porter on Hopkinsville Accom- modation Said to Have Sold Whiskey From Train.

Smith Lunsford, a negro porter on the Hopkinsville accommodation of the L. & N., was arrested at Seebree by Marshal J. S. Wright on the charge of bootlegging.

It was suspected that Lunsford was supplying liquor along his run and Marshal Wright followed him on one of his trips and it is said caught him in the act. He was immediately arrested and taken off the train at Seebree, where he gave a $75 bond to appear before police court Saturday.

It is said that he would purchase the whiskey in small bottles at Evansville every morning and would sell it at numerous little towns en route to Hopkinsville and return.

SUIT AGAINST COUNTY SUPT

Mandamus Proceedings Brought To Enforce Payment Under Contract.

BOARD OF EDUCATION ORDER

Was Not Carried Out by Miss West, County Superintendent of Schools.

The Board of Trustees of the Hopkinsville Public Schools has filed suit for $3,000 against the County Board of Education, Miss Jennie West, Superintendent of County Schools, and the National Surety Company of New York, Miss West's bondsmen. The plaintiff claims that by the terms of a contract with the defendants, the city Board has undertaken to complete the Hopkinsville High School building, and that the County Board had agreed to pay $3,000 a year for a period of five years as tuition for county pupils. It is alleged that none of the money has been paid, and the chief responsibility is charged against Miss West, who, it is alleged, "wrongfully and stubbornly refuses to pay this plaintiff the sum of any part of it, and declares she will never pay said amount; and defiantly overrides the order of the County Board of Education and arrogates to herself the powers and functions of said board."

The National Surety Company is made a party defendant to the suit because it furnished the required bond of $20,000 for Miss West when she assumed the office of county superintendent, guaranteeing the faithful performance of her duties. It is charged in the petition that Miss West's action in refusing payment of the money is wrongful and that therefore the surety company is liable on the bond.

A forthwith mandatory order is asked of the court directing that the money claimed to be due be paid at once with interest since January 5 and with the costs of the action seeking to secure payment. The plea is further made that the order of mandamus be made perpetual.

Dr. W. S. Sandbach of Casky, went to Evansville Tuesday to take a patient to a sanitarium there.

SUSPECT IS ARRESTED

And Lodged In Jail Here On A Very Serious Charge.

TRIAL SET FOR FRIDAY.

Accused of An Attack On Miss Willie Harris at Mannington.

A negro giving his name as John F. Smith was arrested at Mannington yesterday morning by Deputy Sheriff George Boxley and brought to jail here where he will be tried tomorrow. Smith is suspected of being a man who entered the house of Postmaster Williams, at Mannington Monday night and attacked Miss Willie Harris, who lives with his family. The family were in the store in the front part of the house and Miss Harris while alone in the rear room was attacked by a negro man who threw her to the floor and stifled her screams with a pillow. In her struggles she kicked over a chair and the noise attracted the attention of the other occupants of the house and when they ran in the negro had disappeared.

Miss Harris will be given an opportunity to identify the man. Smith denies that he is the man wanted.

WILSON WINS OKLAHOMA

New Jersey Gov. May Capture Oklahoma Delegates.

Washington, Feb. 14—Woodrow Wilson men in Washington were much elated over the news from the Oklahoma primaries. The Wilson people had all along practically conceded the state to Champ Clark, realizing that Oklahoma is largely populated by an influx of people from Missouri. Incomplete returns, however, show that Wilson may capture the state and that even if he does not he has captured the First, Fourth and Fifth Congressional District delegations. These the Wilson people claim, together with delegates that will go to the convention uninstructed, render his chances of ultimately carrying the state almost roseate. The Clark people had unqualifiedly claimed Oklahoma as their own. They had claimed Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas unreservedly and had ordered early conventions in them for political effect. The Oklahoma result is regarded as quite a setback to Clark's aspirations and as showing the great strength of Wilson with the masses of the people.

FISCAL COURT

Convened Yesterday to Make Sheriff's Settlement.

The Fiscal Court held a special session yesterday to receive the settlement of Sheriff Low Johnson and to hear the report of Judge Knight and County Attorney Duff, who were sent to Frankfort to protest against the road bill proposed. They reported that the objectionable bill had been amended and many of its features modified.

of Fred Gueslow, the young truck gardner, who was murdered on a

As an inducement to increase the number of marriages during leap year, Colonel Gus C. Singleton, county court clerk, of McCracken county, has announced that he will give a marriage license to every girl who will make affidavit to the fact that she proposed to her fiance. A grand rush is expected.

After occupying the throne of China for nearly three centuries the Manchu dynasty, represented by the child Emperor Pu Yi, abdicated today. Three edicts were issued, the first proclaiming abdication; the second urging the maintenance of peace, and approving the conditions agreed upon by the Imperial Premier Yuan Shi Kai, and the republicans.

After being considered a pauper for many years, Mrs. Anna Minkler, aged 70 years, of Saratoga, was taken to a charity ward in a local hospital fatally ill with pneumonia.
When the attendants undressed her they discovered sewed in her ragged petticoats a small fortune, sufficient to have kept her in comfort for many years. Savings bank books were cut from the underwear showing that she had on deposit $1,700 and enough of $1 and $5 bills were ripped out to total several hundred dollars.
The nurses also cut out a good watch, several gold rings and a quantity of stick pins worth nearly $1,000 and her marriage certificate and a decree of divorce. So far as known she has no relatives.

The next big tussle between the powers of Europe, so far as can be seen at present, is to be over the Portuguese colonies in Africa. This time England and Germany will come directly face to face; each will be fighting her own diplomatic battle, not that of her friends or allies, as in the Moroccan and Bosnia and Herzegovina cases. The British government is being urged by the Imperialists to take the matter up immediately and get her share at the same time that Germany comes into hers. Germany, there is no doubt, is willing; in some quarters it is believed that she has her preliminary negotiations well under way, while Portugal, being in need of money and knowing that the present is a good time to sell, is not averse to parting with the colonies which she cannot afford to keep up.

Rosy As A Girl.

Summit N. C.—In a letter from this place, Mr. J. W. Church, the notary public, wrote: "My wife had been ailing for nearly 12 years, from female ailments, and at times, was unable to leave the house. She suffered agony with her side and back.
We tried physicians for years, without relief. After these treatments all failed, she took Cardui, and gained in weight at once. Now she is as red and rosy as a school girl." Cardui, as a tonic for women, has brought remarkable results. It re-lives pain and misery and is the ideal tonic for young and old. Try it.

Resolutions of Respect.

Resolutions of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church, Hopkinsville, upon the death of Mrs. Dagg.

In the translation of Mrs. R. H.
Dagg we have sustained a serious and irreparable loss. Her faithful and efficient service began with the organization of our missionary society, of which she was a charter member, and for seventeen years she filled the office of President with rare tact and ability. To her the cause of missions was no passing fancy. She found her chief delight in circulating missionary literature, providing for the needs of missionaries, and tithing her income for God. The flight of years witnessed no flagging of her zeal for the world-wide proclamation of the gospel; she was faithful unto death. The termination of the earthly career of such a character is a momentous event; therefore be it resolved; First. That we express our gratitude to God for sparing her above four score years, and bow in humble submission to the decree that moved her to the Heavenly home.

Second. That we express our profound appreciation of her Godly walk and conversation, and rejoice in the blessed legacy she has bequeathed to us in her splendid example.

Third. That we deeply sympathize with her children in their far reaching loss and affectionately commend them to her God—the God of all comfort.

Fourth. That these resolutions be spread on the minutes, a copy furnished to the family and a copy be sent to the city press.

MINCE PIE FOR BREAKFAST

It Might Pay Those Who Declare It Is Wrong to Try It for Awfully.

When our Puritan ancestors wished to throw the last touch of cerulean gloom into the blue laws they enacted to wit: "That no one shall make mince pies, or play any instrument, except the trumpet, drum, and Jew's-harp." As a means of mortifying the flesh and throwing a damper on the joys of the world this prohibition of mince pies was ever regarded as more effective than placing the aforementioned musical instruments in unskilled hands.
It afforded almost as much quiet pleasure to the early New England conscience as refusing food and lodging "to Quakers and other heretics."

When the reaction set in it followed the pendulous law of reforms and swung just as far the other way.
The skill in the making of mince pies became the very touchstone of good citizenship. The recipes always enumerated the brandy and the currants and the raisins first, and then, as a sort of afterthought, made casual mention that a little "finely cut meat" might improve the mince.

But the uncongenial environment under which the mince pie was born left upon it a superstitious tradition that it was not altogether wholesome. In spite of the increasing number of people who survive a second helping this prejudice obtains here, and there unto the present time.

CURIOUS WORK OF PENANCE

Ancient Buddhist of Japan Writes
126,000 Words on Piece of Paper
13 by 7 1/2 inches.

For some time there has been shown in San Francisco a piece of paper 13 inches by 7 1/2 inches, on which there are written 126,000 words.
This writing is the work of Kobo
Taisht, a Buddhist of Japan, who lived 1,100 years ago. Before his time his countrymen used only Chinese characters in writing and he evolved the idea of the Japanese alphabet.

The writing on the paper is so fine that a microscope has to be used to decipher the intricate Japanese characters. It is an exact copy of eight books of the Buddhist Bible, and was written by the author as a sort of penance to purify his spirit. It is the property of a descendant of the writer, and has passed as a sacred heirloom from father to son for a thousand years. Every precaution has been taken to insure the safety of the document. In a case of white wood is a beautiful laquered box wrapped in green silk. Within the laquered box is another made of a very light porous wood that is extensively used in the manufacture of cabinets in which to store treasures. In this box is the precious writing.

PART IN NATURE'S SCHFME

Snake Really Is a Most Useful Creature, Though Never Likely to Be Popular.

What is the use of snakes? In their "going on their belly," the circumstance that so often offended Bacon, lies one of their greatest uses, because that, together with their internal formation and external covering, enables them to penetrate where no larger carnivorous animal could venture, into dark and noisome no-man's, bog jungles, swamps amid the tangled vegetation of the tropics, where swarms of the lesser reptiles,
on which so many of them feed,
would outbalance the harmony of nature.

Wondrously and exquisitely constructed for their habitat, they are able to exist where the higher animals could not; and while they help to clear those inaccessible places of the lesser vermin, they themselves supply food for a number of the smaller mammalia, which, with many carnivorous birds, devour vast numbers of young snakes.

The hedgehog, weasel, ichneumon, rat, peccary, badger, goat, hog, and an immense number of birds keep snakes within due limits, while the latter perform their part among the grain devouring and herbivorous leas-er creatures.—Harper's Weekly.

MONEY AND CHURCHES.

The amount of money spent upon their churches is always some gauge of a people's devotion. People do not spend great sums of money on their churches, and rob themselves of life, unless they believe in their religion and the things for which it stands. In every Russian village the church is the great building of the region. With its golden domes and its curious double crosses, it towers above all the homes and stores and factories. The village may consist of squalid huts, but the church is often stately, or, if more humble, is embellished with gold and silver ornaments and icons framed in jewels, while the priests are gorgeous in cloth of gold and rich embroidery.—
Dr. Francis E. Clark, in Christian Churches.

THE HIGH BROW.

The slang ban on "highbrow" is hereby raised. No longer will it be left to languish in the lower limbo of language. It is a perfectly good and expressive word. It graphically denotes that amusing class in the community who are not content to be merely and modestly intellectual, but who in addition make a great parade of their intellectuality, who must be imposing, patronizing and pompous.
The Highbrow is the professional intellectual.

Open, ye dictionary sesameas, and

TECHNICAL WORLD MAGAZINE

THREE THINGS YOU NEED..

First—"Kentuckian"
A virile, new newspaper with the interest of the entire community at heart. Issues of today are handled without fear or favor. You will find in this paper an up-to-date department for each member of the family. Clean, honest, straightforward—it is a paper your family should not be without.

Second—Technical World Magazine
Is the one magazine that not only entertains in a fascinating manner, but which also instructs. It is the magazine for the busy business man, or for the person who wants to fill away a summer's afternoon, and be agreeably informed at the same time. It is profusely illustrated, and tells in a simple and interesting way of the discoveries of scientists, the achievements of inventors, the feats of engineers and explorers, and the opening of every new field of human endeavor. What Jack London says—"I have just chanced upon my first copy of TECHNICAL WORLD MAGAZINE. There isn't anything like it. I want more, and I cannot wait for them to come, so I am sending you herewith check for which please enter my subscription and send me immediately the last two years' back numbers."

Third—A Fine Atlas
This one is just off the presses. This is the year to obtain a new atlas. The 1910 Census has just been completed, this atlas contains the official figures. 128 pages of 2 color maps brought right down to date—every map giving the results of the most recent surveys. All railroads are shown and named and maps of all large cities are included. There are 21 double page maps showing in detail portions of the U. S. and Canada. Dimensions 10 1/2 x 13 1/2. Bound in stiff linen—Silver Leaf Title—printed on heavy plate paper. Sells regularly for $3.00. A splendid gift.

ALL THREE
Only $3.80

Special arrangement with Technical World Magazine and the publishers of this Atlas make this offer possible. But it is very strictly limited. You must act immediately.

Dorothy's Campaign

By John Philip Orth

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

State Senator John Andrews, widower, with a daughter Dorothy, had heard things, but had been too busy starting his campaign for re-election to investigate them. Those things had been about his daughter, and what they were he finally got around to say:

"Look here, they tell me you have gone into this nonsensical suffragette business."

"Yes, father," was the quiet reply. "I want you to drop it."

"I will just as soon as my committee reports."

"Committee?"

"Yes. We have a committee on legislative graft, and I am the chairman of it. We have uncovered some things to astonish the public."

"Eh? Eh?" queried the senator as he sat up.

"I think we shall be able to convict one or two senators."

"Do, eh? Well, you won't, and I don't want you fooling with such things. All this talk about graft is pure moonshine. Who has been telling you a lot of stuff?"

"Mr. Rayburn. He's a young man on the 'Examiner,' you know."

"What, you are acquainted with any one on that dish-rag of a sheet?"

"Just Mr. Rayburn, and he's awful nice."

"Nice! Nice! Why the whole pack of them on that paper are liars and scoundrels! Don't you know that they are pitching into me in almost every issue?"

"Yes, but I've heard you say that your record was so pure that they couldn't tarnish it."

"Of course they can't," replied the senator as he hitched uneasily, "but one doesn't want the curs a yapping at his heels all the time. You just drop that young Rayburn like a hot potato!"

"I think he is thinking of calling on you."

"If he does I'll throw him through a window!"

"Thinking of calling on you to ask for my hand?"

The senator gave three jumps. The first carried him ten feet from his chair. The second turned him around. The third jumped him back to where he started from. Then he shouted:

"Never! Never! Never! Warn him not to come! Tell him he'll walk into his own grave if he does! I believe it was his hand that penned the article slandering me last Sunday. If you read it it should have made your blood boil!"

"Oh, I don't know," replied the loving daughter. "You see, we, as suffragettes, get used to such things. Then George can't come and ask for my hand?"

"Not Not!"

"All right, father. He'll naturally be disappointed, but he must put up with it."

"Then you are not going to elope?"

"Oh, no. I shall not marry without your consent."

"And you'll never get it to marry Rayburn or any one else that has ever worked on the 'Examiner.'"

That closed the interview for three days. Then Miss Dorothy made opportunity to say:

"Father, dear, I think it is my duty as an affectionate daughter to say that Mr. Rayburn has got hold of a document that seems to concern you."

"Concern me, how?"

"It seems that he knows—or knew—a man named Tim Donahue. He went to the house the other night to smoke a pipe with him, and found him dying."

"What! Tim Donahue dying!" exclaimed the senator.

"And poor Tim had something on his mind to confess. It seems that he was connected with some senatorial graft a year or two ago, and he felt it his dying duty to expose it. He made a written confession, and Mr. Rayburn has it in his pocket. I think your name is mentioned, but of course, as your record has been whiter than snow—"

"It has—it has, but hang Tim if he gave me away! That is, if he lied about me! I want you to get that document for me!"

"I will try, but—I don't know. I told Mr. Rayburn how you felt toward him, and naturally he was hurt."

There or four days passed, with the senator trying hard to appear indifferent, but really anxious, and then he felt compelled to ask:

"Well, Dorothy, what about that wonderful death-bed confession?"

"I am sorry to tell you, daddy, that there is still worse news. Mr. Rayburn happened to be on the spot the other day when a man named Shane was run down by a street car. Mr. Rayburn is tender-hearted and generous, and he consoled the injured man and sent his wife $50. He couldn't be saved, however, but before he died he made a confession. He was a member of the legislature when the good roads scandal came out. Perhaps you knew him?"

"The infernal rascal! Did he mention my name?"

"I think he did, daddy. I think he confessed that he and you divvied up on something."

"It's a lie, of course, but I want that document as well as the other. There'll be some fools that will believe what a dying man says of an honest politician. Perhaps that Mr. Rayburn—"

"I don't think he would come to see you, daddy. You know you threatened him."

"Then he can stay away. I can get half a dozen good men to swear that Shane was a liar."

The senator walked around with his chest thrown out and a self-satisfied air, but he was worried. He was being written up in his party organs as the snow-white candidate. He wanted to seem defiant, even to his daughter, and it wasn't many days before he asked in what he thought was a jocular tone:

"Well, suffragette, any further alarms?"

"Why, yes, daddy. That is, you may not think it worth minding, owing to your snow-white record, but Mr. Rayburn considers it a great find."

"Dang Mr. Rayburn!"

"So I say, but you see he has got another death-bed confession. He drove out the other day to see Farmer Bramble. It seems that the farmer owned land where the aqueduct is to run, and by the aid of a certain politician and state senator he was enabled to get $12,000 for land worth about $2,000. Of course, there was a divvy in it."

"They can't prove it," shouted the senator.

"Perhaps not, but you see the farmer had been kicked by a mule and lay dying. He couldn't die in peace until he had confessed that the senator got two-thirds of the graft. Mr. Rayburn has the document."

"And it says I'm the senator, does it?"

"I think it does, daddy—I think so. Is there such an expression as dead-to-rights?"

"I believe so."

"Well, I think that Mr. Rayburn thinks that that document gets you dead-to-rights. Don't they sometimes say that a man is caught with the goods on?"

"Y-yes."

"And there is something about a man's goose being cooked?"

"Um!"

"And with the three death-bed confessions in Mr. Rayburn's pocket, and with the suffragettes investigating, and with the 'Examiner' hot on the trail, I think, daddy, dear—I think that you will be snowed under ten feet deep at the coming election!"

But he wasn't. What does a poor, innocent girl know about the tricks of snow-white politicians? The senator fixed that thing in a day. When Mr. Rayburn came calling again he seemed to feel perfectly at home, but he did sigh as he observed:

"You are worth it ten times over, but really I almost hated to do it."

And Dorothy's answer was:

"But if you were a suffragette you would understand that graft must be met with graft. Daddy grafts the public and we graft him!"

Too Polite.

There are many humorous anecdotes current among his countrymen, which Chedo Mijatovich relates in "Servia of the Servians." The following neatly illustrates the point that there are other things more important than mere etiquette:

Nasradin Chodja took much trouble to teach his pupils how to behave politely. Among other things he taught them always to clap their hands and shout, "Hayir Allah!" (God bless you!) whenever they heard an older person sneeze.

Once the Chodja, mending something in the open pit in his garden, slipped and fell in. Nearly drowned in the deep water of the pit, he called to his pupils to bring a rope and drag him out.

The dutiful schoolboys soon found a rope and threw it down to their master, and when he had seized it, began to drag him out. Only a few feet more and he would be out of the pit—when, unfortunately, thoroughly wet as he was, he sneezed!

In an instant all his pupils dropped the rope to clap their hands, shouting:

"Hayir Allah, Chodja!"

The poor Chodja fell back down to the bottom of the pit.

"Ah, it serves me right!" he cried. "I ought to have taught these boys common sense first and then politeness!"—Youth's Companion.

Burris Statement.

In an interview given out by Philip Burris before he was taken from the Henderson jail to the penitentiary, he stated that Blanche Royster had administered the poison. He hurled the bitterest denunciation against the young woman and said that her soul was mean and black. He said that she had insisted on his killing the Royster family and that he had prevented it on more than one occasion.

Miss Royster was told of the statement that was made to the newspapers by Burris and burst into tears, saying that she was now fully convinced that he was a cowardly degenerate, fallen so low that not content with murder, would still attempt to throw the blame on the one person who had sought to believe in him.

The February National.

February was an especially appropriate month for the National Magazine to set forth fittingly "The Untold Treasures of Louisiana." It is without doubt one of the most complete and effective pictures of state progress and resources ever published by any periodical. Mr. Garnaut Agassiz, after traveling over every portion of Louisiana, and residing in the state for over a year, depicts the wealth, beauty and witchery of Louisiana in a way both graphic and picturesque. The cover design is a reproduction of the famous Marchand painting of La Salle taking possession of Louisiana. In running over the pages of the magazine one is astonished at the wonderful blending of the historical, the picturesque, the romantic and the development associated with the industrial, the agrarian and the social interests of Louisiana. It is a vivid, illustrative and up-to-date account that focuses the interest of the reader on the great resources of a great state. Louisiana is the seventh state to be covered by the National Magazine in its remarkable and notable state numbers. It is the plan to cover every state in the Union, and the articles will, when

The Femininity of

Dr. Mary Walker.

Into the waiting-room at the White House walked Dr. Mary Walker, in masculine attire, but with the faint, quick step of a ladylike little woman. Over her shoulders was thrown a large fur of the kind that every woman wears—"Nobody knows"—and in her hand she carried a cane, with which she tapped gently but nervously at the secretary's door. Perhaps this was the second time she had come—anyhow she was impatient, and she gained admittance. As she stood waiting, her eyes fell on a little boy, the son of Congressman Austin, who was growing ill at ease waiting for "farver." In an instant Dr. Walker had picked him up and kissed him as only a woman could, and in that act neither the mannish cane nor the masculine attire could disguise the fact that here was a womanly woman who first of all loved children.

Her iron-gray hair, parted a little to one side, was smoothed down in a professional roll. Her narrow, delicate features and high falsetto voice were in strange contrast to her garb, especially when the towering form

Resolutions of Respect.

Brother John Ducker has crossed the bar. His immortal spirit weighed anchor February tenth at his home on East Ninth street and went out with the tide.

The night of death overtook him just as he was entering the prime of life, thus cutting short his earthly career. The silver cord was loosed, the golden bowl was broken, the pitcher was broken at the fountain, the wheel was broken at the cistern. Hence mourners go about the streets and his brethren are bowed down in grief. His work was not done, yet his column is broken.

Whereas: God in his infinite wisdom has removed our deceased brother; Be it resolved by Hopkinsville Lodge No. 37 Free and Accepted Masons:

That we bow in humble submission to his will, believing that he is infinitely wise and merciful and that he doeth all things well.

Resolved: That in the death of brother Ducker this lodge has lost a good and true member and his family an affectionate son and brother.

Resolved: That we offer our condolences to his stricken family and point them for consolation to the God of all comfort.

Resolved: That the members of Hopkinsville Lodge No. 37 wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days and that these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, a copy be sent to his family, and a copy sent to the Kentuckian and New Era for publication.

BIBLE CLASS IN SOCIAL

Delightful Gathering Held at Christian Church Tuesday Evening.

SEVERAL ADDRESSES MADE

All on Bible Topics and Limited to Five Minutes.

The social given by the four adult Bible Classes Tuesday night, was a decided success. All of the Bible classes of the other city churches were invited to be present and most of them attended. Several hundred people took part and enjoyed the refreshments after the program was concluded.

Prof. H. G. Brownell, First Baptist church, on "Jezebel, the Lady Macbeth of the Book of Kings."

Mrs. W. A. Radford, Baptist Philathea class, "Esther, The Woman Who Saved A Nation."

Mr. Ira L. Smith, Methodist church, "The Troubles of Israel, Elijah."

Mrs. Lizzie M. Clark, Methodist church, "A Hospitable Woman."

Rev. C. H. H. Branch, Presbyterian, "The King Who Could Not Read Writing—Belshazzar."

Miss Nancy Boyd, of Loyal Daughters, Christian Church, recited "God Against Numbers."

Mr. Vernon Neal, of the Loyal Sons, Christian Church, spoke on "The Athletic Prophet."

Mr. Geo. C. Long on "Elisha the Healer." He took as his text "Then Bring Meal" and his address led up to the "meal" that soon came in the class rooms underneath The Cumberland Presbyterian Class attended but Prof. D. A. Clark, who was to represent the class, was not present.

All of the speeches were limited to five minutes.

Rev. H. D. Smith, pastor of the church, gracefully presided.

Delicious refreshments were served by the ladies of the church.

Roasted Victim Alive.

An almost unbelievably cruel happening has come to light at Hiroshima, Japan. There a man and his wife have been arrested for willfully cremating a live man. The prisoners were in charge of a crematorium, and while at work a faint voice coming out of a coffin begged for fresh air. The couple took no notice, however, and proceeded to apply fire, roasting the man alive.

SOME STORIES OF NAPOLEON

Illustrating the Difference Between His Regime and That of the French Kings.

One evening at Fontainebleau the French comedian had just played the "Mariage le Figaro" in the presence of the emperor. When the curtain had fallen Marshal Lannes exclaimed:

"When I think that formerly I almost had myself trampled on and smothered to see that comedy! Well! today I see nothing amusing in it."

"That's because," replied Napoleon, "at that time you were in the pit and now you are in the first boxes."

The emperor has often been seen detaching his own cross of the Legion of Honor to place it himself on the breast of a hero. Louis XIV. would first have asked if the brave man was a noble; Napoleon asked if the noble was brave. A sergeant who in battle had performed prodigies of valor, was brought before Louis XIV. "I grant you a pension of 1,200 livres," said the king.

"Sire, I should prefer the cross of Saint Louis."

"I should think so, but you will not get it."

Napoleon would have embraced the sergeant, Louis XIV. turned his back on him. It is the decided distinction which separates the two epochs.

The emperor's presence in the army produced a great effect. Everyone had the blindest confidence in him; it was known by experience that his plans would bring victory; so that, when he arrived our forces were morally doubled. But this perpetuity of combats tired the old soldiers, the old officers and the old generals very much; they did not hesitate to say so, which prevented no one from doing his duty when the occasion offered.—From "Recollections of an Officer of Napoleon's Army."

SAVED WHEN HOPE WAS LOST

Woman Little Likely Ever to Forget Her Terrible Experience in Shipwreck.

A woman recently had a remarkable, almost miraculous escape from death in a shipwreck. The wrecked ship was the Norwegian steamer Vivienne, whose passengers and crew—with the exception of one of the ship's boys, who was drowned—were landed at Cardiff, Wales, by the steamer Glenelg, which had been in collision with the Vivienne off the Lizard. As the vessel sank, Mrs. Jorgensen, a passenger, in her night attire, was on the top of the wheel house, and, believing hope was at an end, had raised her hands in prayer, when a rope slung from the Glenelg fell into them. A moment later the water rose to her waist, but clutching the rope tightly she felt herself being drawn up the sides of the Glenelg. Suddenly the rope stopped and for five terrible minutes she swung over the waters, but eventually was safely drawn on board. The Chinese composing the Glenelg's crew had been too weak to pull her aboard.

Thomas M. Honan, attorney general, who has given more attention to studying law than to studying spelling, finds solace for misspelled words in a saying of an old-time newspaper man at Seymour, Honan's old home, whose copy the composers had to watch carefully for bad spelling.

"One day two young women went to his office to write a letter," Honan said. "They borrowed the old man's paper, his pen and ink, and asked him to let them sit at his desk while they wrote the letter. The old man accommodated them, and while they were writing, he busied himself looking over the newspaper files, not in the best of humor because he had been disturbed."

"Please, Mr. Blank, how do you spell autocratic?" asked one of the girls.

"Spell it any way you darn please," he replied. "Do like Noah Webster. He never asked anybody how to spell a word, and we have to like the way he spelled 'em."—Indianapolis News.

PLAYING CARDS UNCHANGED.

Quite apart from their use in various games, playing cards are an interesting study from historic and pictorial points of view. There are four suits, representing four classes of people as they were divided at the time the pack of cards we now use was devised by the French. The "spades" stood for pikemen or soldiers, the "clubs" for clover, typifying farmers, the "diamonds" for building titles, representing artisans, and the "hearts" for choirmen or ecclesiastics. The "kings" and "queens" at that time were more or less correct likenesses of certain royal and noble personages. Even in our modern packs it is said that one of the "queens" is a conventionalized portrait of Elizabeth of York, who was engaged to the Dauphin of France. The "knaves" were then the king's jesters, and even these cards may be portraits. All the court cards, in fact, retain their sixteenth century characteristics. Cards are amongst the few things that have not changed with the centuries.

CONDUCTING A COLLECTION.

The Rev. Allen Fort, pastor of the Baptist tabernacle in Chattanooga, asked J. B. Capeheart, a railroad conductor, to take up the collection one day. It was Mr. Capeheart's first experience as a taker of collections in church.

He started down the center aisle. There were several children in the first pew and each put in a penny. The people in the next pew also contributed something each. A big, glum fellow sat alone in the third pew. Capeheart passed him the plate. The man shook his head and stuck his hands deep in his pocket.

Capeheart stopped, put up his hand as if to jerk the bell cord and said: "Well, you'll have to get off."—Saturday Evening Post.

HOTELS FOR THE POOR.

In the Japanese capital there are 538 poor men's hotels. The north-east of the capital is where the greatest number is to be found. In these inns the traveler is lodged in a room with a superficial area of three feet by six. If the traveler be better off and requires more cubic feet of inn he can obtain an apartment the same length, but double the breadth, and if he be more fastidious he can have the luxury of an apartment six feet by nine. The lowest cost of a night's lodging is eight sen.

Great Emergency Sale!

BEGINNING SATURDAY, FEB. 17TH, FOR 8 DAYS ONLY.

To Get Rid Quickly of This Big Stock of Clothing.

You have, of course, expected something out of the ordinary and you are going to get it. This advertisement can not go further than to just make a general announcement of the plan we have formulated. The best part of the story is to be told you after you get to the store—then we will unfold to you the more interesting detail.

We have never before resorted to such slashing and smashing of prices—did not stop to consider what the various suits and overcoats cost—went at it and cut prices as if we were going out of business and had about 3 days in which to do it—however, if we choose to take such a large loss on our clothing just to get rid of it with a rush, we don't imagine that you will object very seriously. If you get a $25.00 suit or overcoat for $13.00 and possibly less, you need not be surprised.

The sale will begin promptly on the morning of February 17th, and we expect a rushing business from the very first minute that our doors are opened. People are going to come from miles around, and you certainly are not going to miss this treat and opportunity to double the buying power of your money.

It doesn't matter if you should happen to feel that you have sufficient clothes now—you will need a new suit or overcoat or both next Fall, and by simply taking advantage of the extraordinary opportunity you get in this Great Emergency Sale and buying now in anticipation of your future needs, you will have the suit or overcoat at a cost of just a few dollars and at a cheaper price than you'll ever run across again.

And this is what we've done. Taken this big stock of fine suits and overcoats and divided it into three immense lots to go on sale at three record-breaking cut-prices, namely

RELICS OF EARLY CHRISTIANS

Italian Soldiers in Tripoli Have Made Discoveries of Great Archeological Importance.

Several discoveries of great archeological importance have been accidentally made by the Italian soldiers at Ainara, a small oasis about five miles from the coast of Tripoli, where two large ancient mosaic pavements in an admirable state of preservation as well as the remains of a Roman temple built under the Emperor Severus have been brought to light. Professor Marucchi, the secretary of the Pontifical Society of Christian Archeology, has recently made public another discovery at Ainara which is of the utmost historical importance. Some time before the Italian occupation of Tripoli Dr. Aurigemma discovered a Christian cemetery consisting of an open area where so far over sixty tombs have been found. These tombs are built of stone and bricks faced with mortar, on which inscriptions in Latin have been scratched. Crosses and other symbolic Christian devices have been discovered as well as Latin formulas taken from the liturgy. There seems to be no doubt that this cemetery dates from the fifth century, and the fact that it was situated in an open area seems to prove that a flourishing Christian colony existed in North Africa at that time.

SOMETHING AKIN

Annabel—And I hear that he doesn't fancy work.

SMUGGLING BY GASOLINE AID.

French customs officials recently discovered deserted in a little ditch near Hazebrouck, on the Belgian frontier, a powerful motor car specially constructed for smuggling. The smugglers had fitted a steel guard in front of the car a few inches from the ground so formed that it would catch any obstruction and hurl it into the air out of the way, says the New York Tribune. The projecting portions of the car were armed with spikes to prevent any attempt to hold it back. In the car were over 3,000 pounds of tobacco, and as it is thought that this was the car's maiden journey the investment was not a very profitable one to the smugglers.

USES FOR PUTTY.

If a piece of putty is wrapped in oiled paper and kept in a covered tin can it will keep pliable for a long time, and it may be used in many ways in a pinch.

One housewife used putty to mend a galvanized washtub where it was spread at the seams. It was plastered around the seams and allowed to harden before it was used and was found to be water tight.

If a plaster is loose fill the space with soft putty, insert the stem of the plaster, and when dry it will be held securely in place.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SO DIFFERENT FROM HERS.

"Miss Ganderprest," said the hostess, "allow me to present Mr. Prendergast."

"Why, can it be possible," exclaimed the charming young lady, "that anybody has such a name as that!"

A Girl of Yesterday

By Martha McCulloch Williams

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

"It's no use—not the least," Dora said despondently, though her lips curled faintly. "Wear that—thing to the Marston! I won't. That's flat. I don't expect, of course, to have things like other girls—but this once—well, it seems to me, if father—"

"Shut up!" Prudence, her elder, worn and worried, said imperatively. "Nag me all you want to, but leave father out. The salt of the earth—that's what he is—so good I don't see how he can have a flirty, flighty child such as you."

Dora was used to such sisterly amenities. There were just the two of them—father did not count. Unlucky, mild, the soul of honor, he had a talent for losing whatever he ventured, so had ceased from venturing—not quite voluntarily, to be sure. Squire Hexly, his wife's father, had tied up his daughter's portion, so it inured solely to the benefit of the two girls. It was safely invested—so safely the income was mighty slender. Hence the chaffings of Dora—and Prudence's careworn face.

Prudence loved her father passionately—because she understood him. The fine fibre that made it impossible for him to be shrewd and money-making seemed to her the most wonderful thing in the world. She petted him undemonstratively—chiefly in the way of cooking what he liked, exactly as he liked it. Further, she made Dora keep the peace—mainly by giving the young lady much more than was equitably hers. But she had refused the new party dress, firmly, and spent herself on refurbishing an old one. Dora had already spent much more than her share of the joint income—and Prudence was bent upon buying her father a new greatcoat—he had needed one for two winters at least.

Commonly, she either coaxed Dora out of the sulks, or ended them by herself giving in. This time she did neither. Instead, she nonchalantly took up her shears, saying over her shoulder, "If you are so set against this dress, I know a girl that'll be glad to have it. It only needs a little shortening and a bit of the waist measure to make it fit Ellnor Lee—"

"Give it to her and welcome."

"She shan't have it—it's my dress—even if I don't mean to wear it," Dora flashed out. "Hateful thing! She'd feel fine as Friday—though she knew everybody was laughing at her, because she had on my cast-off clothes."

"You don't want them to laugh at her, I suppose," Prudence said argumentatively.

Dora gave her a withering look, saying, "You know I don't want her to go. She's so uppish, and forward, always pushing herself into everything."

"I say she's nice—always trying to help along. Tastes differ," Prudence countered loftily, still clutching the shears. "As you say—this is your frock. Wonder if I haven't got something that might do for Ellnor?" There's my graduating dress—you turn up your nose at it—but those old-fashioned rosebud silks are coming back again."

"Give it to her and welcome—if she comes in it, she will be worse than a laughing stock," Dora said, scowling.

Prudence turned sharply on her. "You're my blood—whether or no," she said. "Don't let a beau, more or less, make you so mean and hateful. You're afraid Ellnor will cut you out with Tazewell Gray. I hope she won't—he's the best chance you'll ever have—but you won't get him by being so despicable. He has eyes that see deeper than a pretty face—even if it is yours."

ed from a great grandmother, to whom fine and costly things were not rare. It would give distinction to any frock. Instantly, Dora was smiling. She even patted her sister's hand, saying, "Oh, but you are clever, Prue. I won't be naughty again for a whole month."

Then the two fell to work, with the result that Prudence had time next day to fit the rosebud silk to slight, pretty Ellnor Lee—and feel more than rewarded by the girl's shy yet genuine gratitude.

"You—you are—better than a fairy godmother, Miss Prue," she said. "Because this beautiful frock won't turn to rags even if I do dance on past 12 o'clock."

The Marston dance reached almost the dignity of a ball. Dora was easily the belle of it—tall and dashing, vivid in color, mobile of face, she caught every eye. The transfigured green satin became her as no other gown had ever done. It swathed her slender, curving shape modestly, yet alluringly. Because she knew she was looking her best, she was at her best—until the unexpected happened.

Ellnor was unaccountably late in coming. Truth to tell, she had come long before the rest, and spent the interval in helping kind Mrs. Marston with the fine, last details of supper. She had been wise enough to rest afterward—even to sleep a little while. As a result she came among the dancers dewy-eyed, and as rosy fresh as the flowers upon her frock. They had held color, and showed finely against a ground once white but now the softest cream. The low bodice had a lace bertha at top—the frostwork of it was caught up in front with a knot of real pink roses. Tiny ruffles fluffed over the foot of the full skirt. Truly, Ellnor's feet, beneath, "like little mice, played in and out." Her mass of fair, wavy hair, simply parted, and coiled low, went beautifully with the gown's lines. Altogether, she was a picture, the sweetest picture in all the world to one pair of eyes—Tazewell Gray's eyes.

He had hung about Dora half a year, all the while conscious of Ellnor's attraction. Commonly he had seen her in the world of workaday—a fragment of the huge machine known as public education. Rosy and rose-beset, he knew her for what she was—the woman of all the world to fill and crown his life.

He strode toward her, forgetting all else. But before he came to her, Allan Muir had whisked her off in a waltz. Indeed, for a full hour he could not get near her. Outblowing the roses of yesterday, she put even Dora in the shade. Partners, the most finicky, the most eligible, swarmed about her—her card was full in a twinkling. By way of keeping the peace she even parted dances between the young fellows she knew best.

Tazewell would have no such partnership. Audaciously, in the face of an eager partner, he drew Ellnor out on the piazza to say:

"Girls of yesterday didn't flirt—you look the part—are you going to live up to it?"

"No—because I don't know how," Ellnor murmured, drooping lightly toward him.

Then and there he kissed her—quite forgetting Dora.

FIND REST IN NEEDLEWORK

More Women Should Realize the Beneficial Effects Such Employment Has on the Nerves.

Not many realize what a restful effect needlework has on one, and it has this great advantage over books, that one is not lost to all around. One woman of artistic tastes goes to the museum and makes sketches of well-known pieces of art needlework and tapestry designs, and then sets to work to copy them. And the woman who would look charmingly picturesque well knows she is most fascinating sitting before a frame, with exquisite colored silks near her.

But this kind of needlework needs more thought than white work. As one sews, the thoughts come fast. One remembers one's grandmother, showing one how to put the needle in, and advising stroking the cotton under the hem neatly, when an impatient beginner would tie a knot. One also remembers the beautiful work she accomplished.

That strange and interesting woman, Princess Helene von Racowitza, in her memoirs, amusingly describes her first attempt at tailoring, with which she was delighted. And she says ever since her first success she has made all her own clothes, including lingerie. The princess must be a monument of patience and cleverness, because the making of gowns, in these days, is an art not lightly acquired.

Bandit Career Nipped in Bud.
An amusing tale of a would-be bandit comes from Belgium, Rene Tasse-roul, aged 15, clerk in an office in Brussels, was sent by his employer to bank $160. His employer heard no more of him. A week later Rene, now an elegant and well-dressed youth, resident in a private hotel, astonished the manager of the house by rushing into his private room, brandishing a pistol in either hand, and offering the old-fashioned alternative of "Your money or your life." Fortunately, the manager was too quick for him, and the young brigand was disarmed. Tasse-roul confessed that he had spent his employer's money in purchasing a store of pistols, knives, etc., and had decided to rob the hotel-keeper in order to obtain further funds before setting out for California, there to live the life of a bandit.

BOOMING YEAR JUST AHEAD

Hopkinsville To Be The Busiest Place In The State Of Kentucky.

SEVERAL NEW ENTERPRISES.

More Than $200,000 Of New Buildings To Be Built During Year.

Hopkinsville is to have the busiest building year in its history as soon as the weather opens. Work is going ahead on the $100,000 High School building, the $30,000 Elks Home and the $4,500 sewer on Tenth Street and has been pushed all winter. Just as soon as spring comes several more big things are to be started.

One of these is a wholesale distributing house for the Kentucky Automobile Co., handling Cadillac machines. It will be erected by R. E. Cooper & Company on the Hopson lot not sold, fronting 75 feet and running back 120 feet. It will be two stories on Main Street. It is built on a 5-year lease and will cost something like $10,000. Mr. Hagerman, who owns the only other vacant lot in that block, will also build a business house for rent.

Peter Fox & Sons, who recently bought the old cannery factory corner First and Railroad streets, are preparing to erect a cold storage plant for poultry and manufacture their own ice and also run an ice business. This firm has been doing a business of $75,000 to $100,000 here every year for several years and have concluded to make this their Southern headquarters and greatly enlarge their business.

The business block, ladies' club house and roof garden to be erected by Mr. T. J. Metcalfe; the $30,000 dormitory by McLean College, the $20,000 dormitory as an addition to Bethel College and a large number of new residences already planned will add to the general activity in busy, booming Hopkinsville.

OFFICER RETURNS THE FIRE

Lively Chase of Three Tramps
Was In Progress By Night
Policemen.

Several police officers had a lively encounter with three vicious hobos who alighted from train No. 93 about two o'clock yesterday morning. Officers Amos Hayden and W. D. Carter gave chase and while trying to round them up in the Southern part of the town several shots were fired to make the men stop. This failed to have the desired effect and the officers were given the slip. Officer D. L. Mitchell, who had been left in charge of the sub-station, heard the shots and joined in the chase. Near Walnut and 13th streets he came upon the three men huddled against a fence and when within about 40 feet of them one of them fired point blank at the officer, who was under a light, and the trio took to their heels. Mitchell returned the fire and the search was continued. Other officers joined in the hunt, but the hobos disappeared in the darkness and evidently left town on foot.

Killed by a Limb.

Madisonville, Ky., Feb. 14.—Failing to hear his father's cries of warning in time, Finis Stanley, aged 17, of near Hanson, was crushed to the ground by a falling tree limb and almost instantly killed Monday morning. The dead limb struck the lad across the head and pinned him to the ground. When his father and a neighbor reached his side, he was breathing his last. He was a son of Riley Stanley, a prominent farmer.

DORMITORY FOR BETHEL

Special Order For Prayer Meeting Last Night at Baptist College

MOVEMENT WELL UNDER WAY

Growth of the School Urgently Demands More Room Next Session.

Bethel Female College is having a boom that makes more room imperative for the fall session. Every room is crowded and the large Anderson home is also filled with girls and President Brownell is booking new pupils already for next fall. The movement for a new $20,000 dormitory to house 40 or 50 pupils was put on foot last night at prayer meeting at the Baptist church, a special meeting having been called for the purpose.

Preliminary drawings were presented and strong appeals made for the much needed addition, to be located on the west side of the campus and built to correspond in architectural design with the main building. Subscriptions were started and a good beginning made. The old building has been insured for $9,500. The Board of Trustees met last week and added $2,500 more. Public spirited citizens have supplemented this by raising money to take out $5,000 or $10,000 more for five years. One $5,000 policy has already been placed. It is intended to carry at least $20,000 on the old building so that in the event of a fire, the building could be rebuilt at once.

Purely Personal

Mr. S. L. Cowherd is sick with an attack of mumps.

Mr. D. G. Edwards is quite ill with symptoms of appendicitis.

Mrs. W. R. Howell is expected to return this week from an extended visit to her sons in Richmond, Va.

Rev. Geo. C. Abbott is attending the Episcopal diocese in Russellville.

Rev. C. M. Thompson is attending a Bible Conference at Murray.

Mr. J. C. Galbreath has returned from a trip to Georgia and Alabama.

Miss Maggie Ellis will sail this week from Europe for a visit to England and a tour of Europe.

W. W. Barbee has returned from an extended trip to Texas and Oklahoma and a visit to his brother, Mr. Dennis Barbee, at Little Rock, Ark.

Mrs. John J. Metcalfe and Miss Marie Hille leave to-day for New Orleans to attend Mardi Gras. From New Orleans Miss Hille will go to Texas to visit relatives and will be absent about three months.

A Lead Pencil Danger.

In the United States the danger of putting pencils in the mouth has long been recognized, and in all the schools every precaution is taken to prevent the interchange of pencils as well as the moistening of them with the lips. A great many children and even their elders, who ought to know better, persist in putting pencils in their mouth regardless of the risk they run.

Shark Hatched In Captivity.

For some time a shark's egg in the Glasgow (Scotland) Aquarium has been watched from day to day. It hatched a few days ago, an event unique in many respects. The tiny shark seems quite at home, and is not a bit shy of the numerous visitors who have crowded to see it.

ONLY ONE MORE DAY

To Bring Suits In The Approaching February Court.

MANY NEW SUITS FILED.

Jail Is Also Crowded With Law Breakers Awaiting Indictment.

The indications are that the coming term of Circuit Court, which begins the 26th, will be a busy one. Many new suits have been filed and others will be up to tomorrow, which is the last day for filing. No very important suits have been brought.

Richard Leavelle has filed suit against the L. & N. Railroad for $300 damages claimed on a carload of mules shipped.

John P. Prowse, Sr., has sued E. D. Henderson, of North Christian, asking $427 damages. Plaintiff states that he purchased a lot of timber from the defendant and that said defendant represented timber as being included in the sale that was in reality on adjoining property, and that he failed to provide a roadway as agreed in contract.

Hearst Fails To Come.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 14.—Owing to illness in his immediate family William Randolph Hearst cancelled his engagement to address the Kentucky legislature on Wednesday, February 14. He expressed his thanks for the invitation and his regrets at being prevented from accepting it. The Hearst banquet has been declared off.
